MONKEY-FRIENDLY REMINDERS

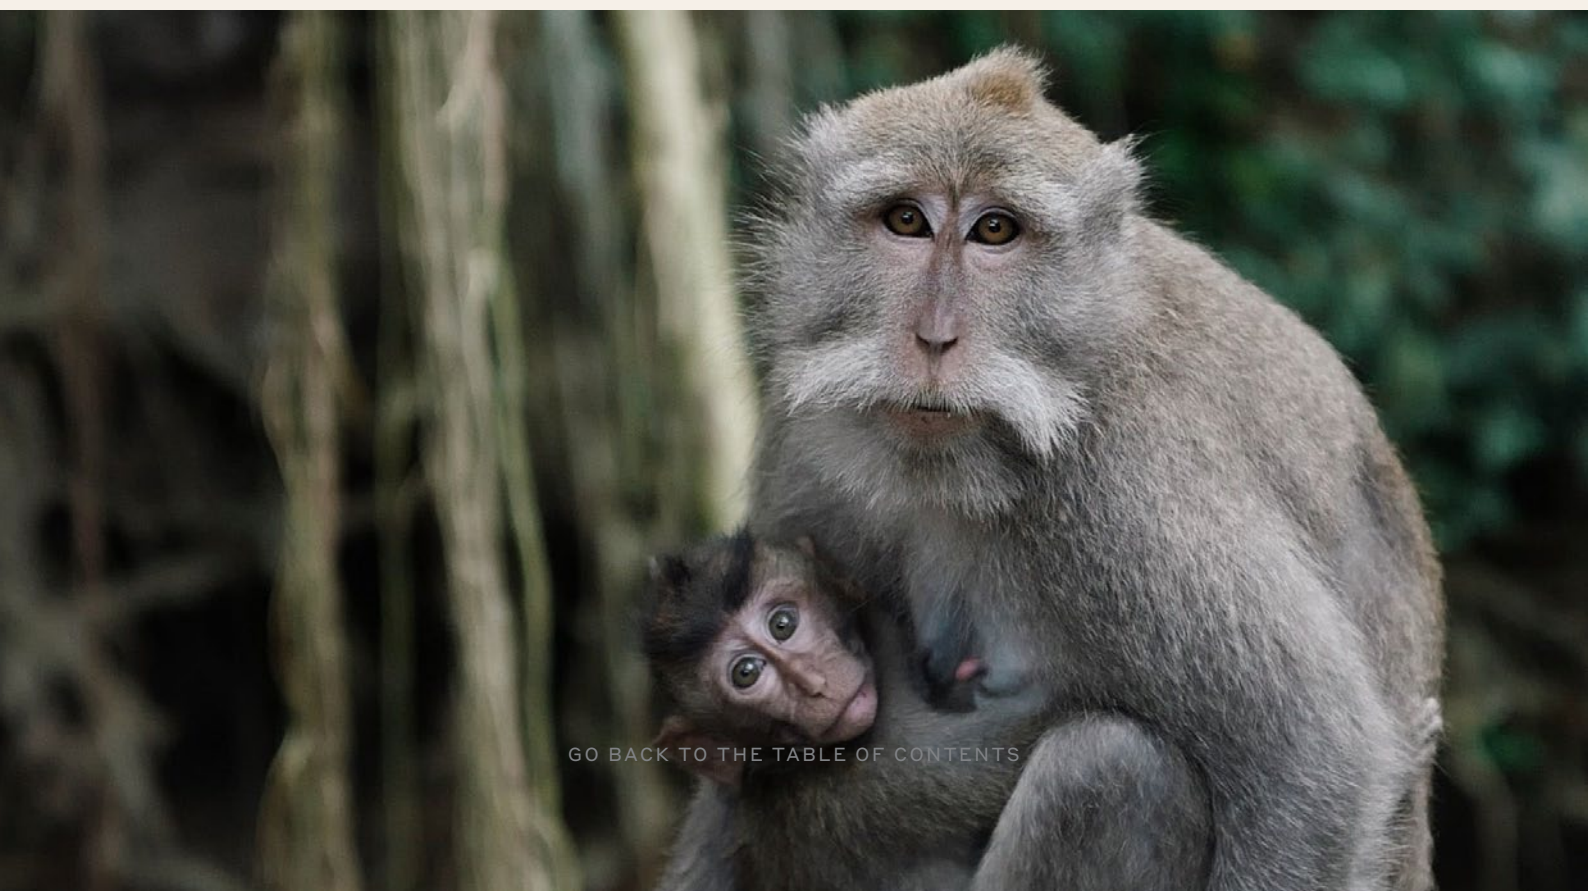

ALWAYS CLOSE & LOCK YOUR DOOR WHEN LEAVING YOUR VILLA.

PLEASE DO NOT LEAVE ANY VALUABLE THINGS UNATTENDED AT THE VERANDA. Monkeys are intelligent, curious, and playful creatures. They will fancy items that attract their interest such as mobile phones, cameras, food, and other valuables.

DO NOT FEED THE MONKEYS. Monkeys help disperse seeds and fertilize our forests, feeding them may disrupt their health, and the balance of our island's delicate ecosystem. Also, the act of offering something tells them they're the boss of you!

DO TAKE LONG-RANGE PHOTOS INSTEAD OF SELFIES. By doing so, you ensure both your and our forest friends' safety. Just like you, they love Pangulasian Island for the privacy it offers.

For any concerns with Pangulasian's resident Philippine Native Long-tailed Macaques (Macaca fascicularis philippinensis), please dial "0" for Front Desk assistance.

JELLYFISH & PLANKTON

With the tide and current bringing in nutrient-rich waters, more plankton (including jellyfish larvae) and adult jellyfish can be expected from December to May. To avoid getting stung by its stinging cells called nematocysts, guests are advised to:

WEAR PROTECTIVE CLOTHING
such as full-legged suits.

SHOWER UPON REMOVAL OF SWIMWEAR
as jellyfish larvae can get trapped underneath bathing suits.

IF STUNG, our marine sports guides are equipped with first aid treatment. For additional relief, please seek our resort doctor for assistance.

IF YOU WISH TO LEARN MORE ABOUT THESE INTERESTING CREATURES, you may also speak with our Sustainability Officers.

SNORKELING ETIQUETTE

Be the ocean's partner in conservation by following these simple rules.

KEEP CALM AND FLOAT ON. Wear your lifejacket and maintain proper buoyancy. When you swim calmly and observe marine life from a distance, you help minimize any disturbance to our sea friends' natural behavior.

FISH FOR INFORMATION. Get to know the amazing creatures you see during your underwater safari. Borrow our reference books or have a fish-y chat with either our guides or resident Sustainability Officers.

LEAVE NOTHING BUT BUBBLES. Keep litter off our seas. Likewise, help out our fish and turtle friends by picking up possible discards you see while snorkeling.

BE SAFE AND GO *REEF-SAFE! Before applying sunscreen, ensure its ingredients are reef-safe. Avoid sunscreens containing harmful chemicals such as oxybenzone and octylmethoxycinnamate, which can damage corals.

GET CLOSE WITH YOUR BUDDY. For your safety, always buddy up when snorkeling. Your "buddy" can be a guide, a friend, or a fellow traveler.

DON'T KICK / STEP ON CORALS. Corals may resemble rocks, plants, or flowers, but they are living animals. Some corals can take around 200 years to grow just one meter. To help protect them, avoid standing on or kicking towards the coral, as this can cause siltation and damage.

DON'T COLLECT SHELLS, SAND, CORALS, OR OTHER CREATURES AS SOUVENIRS. Everything under the sun (and the sea) serves their own purposes, it is best to leave them as is wherever they are. So take nothing but trash out of the sea when snorkeling.

DON'T ANCHOR. Check if the boat you have boarded is not throwing its anchor on the reefs. If doing so, report this and any other destructive incidents to your guides or resident Sustainability Officer.

TEN EL NI-DOS

We believe in respecting our natural resources through responsible tourism. All resort guests are encouraged to support and contribute to the protection and conservation of El Nido's natural resources by observing this code of conduct.

DO admire the corals but remember that they are very delicate—damaged when touched, stood upon or walked on.

DO treat the terrestrial and marine fauna as you would treat people; be friendly and respect their privacy.

DO remember to bring home whatever you brought to El Nido. Beach litter is made up mostly of plastics and other non-biodegradable materials.

DO help keep the waters of El Nido crystal clear, the sand powder white, and forest lush and green. Cigarette butts, aluminum cans, and plastic wrappers belong in trash bins. They are non-biodegradable and are sometimes eaten by birds and other animals mistaking them for food.

DO mingle with the members of the local community but respect their culture and traditions.

DO admire the unique and peculiarly shaped marine and terrestrial formations, yet leave them as they are so others may enjoy their beauty as well. As many as they seem, the shells on the beach are finite in number.

DO understand that all things are related to everything. Every single organism and object has its particular role and contribution to the environment.

DO make a personal commitment to live an environmentally ethical life—it is our responsibility to ourselves, our children, grandchildren, and the Earth as a whole.

DO accept the responsibility to sustain and heal the Earth. Whatever we sow, we reap—there is no other way with nature.

DO respect all forms of life and recognize the limits of El Nido's ecosystem. Together we can help keep El Nido's resources as rich as it is now.
